Braided In My Hair is the story of Daisy Wray, a gifted but awkward child who struggles to understand her relationship with God and the lessons He teaches. Daisy is raised by her very loving, religious, and sometimes harsh grandmother. Together they embark on a journey that is spiritual and educational. Parts of the book will elicit strong emotions. You will laugh, cry, and possibly feel so overwhelmed that you will shut the book for a second, then immediately open it again to find out what happens next. You will feel so strongly because Daisy is so real. At some points she will seem like your alter ego, a page from your autobiography, or your best friend.
