Why We Believe in Creationism J. Palmer Douglas

The secular education system, from elementary school through college, has created a false premise that life evolved, the universe was created by a big bang, and that the Bible is nothing more than a myth. Anyone not accepting this false premise is portrayed as foolish or non-thinking. Why We Believe in Creationism examines every major area of science to dispel this false premise and to reveal that the Bible is one of the most scientific books ever written. Written by a career science educator, who is also an ordained minister, this book reveals in a simple, easy to understand conversational style, that real science declares that God is the true Creator of the universe and everything in it. Whether you're a parent whose children are being taught in school that we evolved, or someone who wants to understand Bible science without being a scientist, this book is a must read. Why We Believe In Creationism provides clear answers to problematic subjects such as time, how light from very distant objects can reach us quickly, how DNA is designed to prevent evolution, the physics of the omnipresence of God, and much more. Why We Believe In Creationism presents many scientific facts never before discussed in a book on Creationism, to give the reader a full understanding of how science reveals the truth of Genesis chapter one. Easy to read and easy to understand, Why We Believe In Creationism should be in every believer's library to equip him or her to "always be ready to give a defense to everyone who asks you a reason for the hope that is in you."
